

new central offices

cmm architects were appointed by Gordon timber to investigate the alternatives for rationalising the office provision on their site at Nairn, a site occupied by them for over 150 years.

The client requires the provision of centralised office accommodation, at best value within the existing site boundary for optimum communications with all other site operations. Taking account of future expansion. Site safety is a major factor.

" this may be the first and last thing the visitor here will experience, lets make it a positive one"
